Honors, promotions mark trustees' May meeting

The board of trustees at its May 10 meeting took care of some necessary business and heard several end-of-year reports.

In action items, the board:

- Named Janet Parks, human movement, sport and leisure studies, a Distinguished Teaching Professor (See story in next week's Monitor).

- Named the University intramural complex in honor of the late Maurice O. Sandy, a faculty member and administrator in the former School of Health, Physical Education and Recreation, citing his "vision, depth of commitment to and outstanding efforts in enhancing the co-curricular experience of BGSU through building a premier co-educational intramural program with complementary playing facilities."

- Presented the first BGSU Board of Trustees Leadership Scholarship to Callie L. Glave, a senior majoring in international business and finance.

Glave was awarded the $1,000 scholarship for the 2002-03 academic year. The board established the scholarship in conjunction with the creation of the President's Leadership Academy and in support of an ongoing BGSU priority—promoting a culture of leadership at the University.

- Approved changes to the Student Code of Conduct. The associate dean of students will chair the hearing when a claim has been made against a student or campus organization. Both the person making the complaint and the person against whom it is made will now be responsible for presenting their own cases.

The University Discipline Committee hearing the case will make a recommendation to the assistant vice president for student affairs and dean of students, who will then decide what, if any, sanctions will result.

- Agreed to meet again on June 19 to approve an operating budget for the coming fiscal year, including fees and salaries.

Coming out of executive session following the regular meeting, the board voted to pursue the acquisition of property adjacent to the University just west of the railroad tracks, including the parking lot the University leases on Pike Street and as far as Ridge Street. The proposed uses could include parking facilities, among others.

In his report to the board, President Sidney Ribeau said Family Campaign giving this year is up 5 percent from this time last year, with 45 percent of employees contributing a total of $568,415.

"With a projected $2 billion shortfall in Ohio next year, private giving becomes even more important," Ribeau said.

This strong level of employee participation is very helpful when approaching outside organizations for support, he added.

Also on the increase is enrollment. The board heard that freshman applications are up by 197 and admissions by 136 over this time last year. Tom Gerrity, BGSU Firelands advisory board president, reported the number of students enrolled in summer classes at Firelands is up 42.5 percent from last year, and fall enrollment exceeds last year's at this time by 19.8 percent.

Trustee Leon Bibb reported that major crime is down on the entire campus, as is binge drinking, but marijuana use is up.

Bibb also said that response time to the new blue lights at the emergency telephones has been 30-60 seconds, according to BGSU Police Chief James Wiegand.

Thirty faculty celebrate tenure and promotion

A jubilant group of faculty was granted promotion and, in some cases, tenure by the board of trustees at its May 10 meeting. Before the meeting, the board hosted a reception in honor of those being promoted.

In addition to current BGSU faculty, the board approved the appointments with tenure of Josué Cruz, incoming dean of the College of Education and Human Development, as a professor of teaching and learning; Steven Jex as an associate professor of psychology; and Laura Lengel as an associate professor of interpersonal communications.

Twenty faculty received tenure and promotion to associate professor. They are John Balistreri and Rebecca Green, art; Rachel Buff, history; Kristie Foell, German, Russian and East Asian languages (GREAL); Michael McKay, biological sciences; Donna Nelson-Beene, English; Apollos Nwauwa, history and ethnic studies; David Sobel, philosophy; Lisa Wolford, theatre and American culture studies; Michael Zickar, psychology; Steven Cady, management; Dawn Hentges, family and consumer sciences; Craig Mertler and Rachel Vannatta, leadership and policy studies; Andrew Kurtz, humanities (BGSU Firelands); Patricia Falk, special collections, Libraries and Learning Resources (LLR); Stefanie Hunker, Linda Rich and Carol Singer, all information services, LLR, and Robert Satterlee, music performance studies.

Those promoted to full professor were Kit Chan and Hanfeng Chen, mathematics and statistics; Geoffrey Howes, GREAL; Joseph Jacoby, sociology; Michael Ogawa, chemistry; Dale Smith, physics and astronomy; Catherine Stein, psychology; Mary Ellen Benedict and Timothy Fuerst, economics; William Redmond, marketing; William Armaline and Cindy Hendricks, education and intervention services; Emily Freeman Brown, music performance studies, and Sri Kolla, technology systems.

Emeritus status granted to eight retired/retiring faculty

For their many years of dedication to their students and the University, the board of trustees on May 10 granted emeritus status to eight faculty members who have retired or will be retiring by the end of this fiscal year.

The faculty and their emeritus status are—

- Judith Bentley, professor emeritus of music performance studies;

- Edward Fiscus, associate professor emeritus of intervention services;

- Henry Garrity, professor emeritus of romance languages;

- Susan Gavron, associate professor emeritus of human movement, sport and leisure studies;

- Ann-Marie Lancaster,

associate professor emeritus of computer science;

- Mary Joyce Lunn, assistant professor emeritus of teaching and learning;

- Stephen McCleary, professor emeritus of mathematics and statistics, and

- Clyde Willis, dean emeritus of the College of Health and Human Services.

ASC fetes 'best and brightest'

Administrative Staff Council applauded some of "BG's Best" on May 13 at its annual spring reception.

In his opening remarks, President Sidney Ribeau commented that the past year has been "a year like no other" in his 30 years in higher education.

The University faced several challenges, including the Sept. 11 disaster and the severe state budget shortfalls. It was a year in which employees had to hone their crisis management skills, he said, but the University managed to come through intact.

"In times like these, our best resources are other individuals. When resources are shrinking, we need to support one another," he said, adding that awards such as BG Best are especially meaningful because they are given by one's peers.

Receiving the BG Best award and a whimsical, hand-painted ceramic bird were—

- University Photographer Craig Bell, Office of Marketing and Communications. Photographer Brad Phalin said Bell's graciousness in responding to photo requests and his high standards are "exemplary of BGSU's core values of respect, cooperation and pride in a job well done." By always striving for the best in representing the University pictorially, Bell has boosted the University's image.

- Assistant Registrar John Clark. As chair of Administrative Staff Council this year, he has formed stronger bonds with Faculty Senate and Classified Staff Council, said nominator Laura Emch, associate director of Student Financial Aid. With the University's core values as his foundation, Clark demonstrates daily his devotion to BGSU and is a conscientious and dedicated employee and administrative staff representative.

- Sally Dreier, a reading specialist in the Office of Academic Enhancement's Study Skills Lab. Her nominator, colleague Joyce Blinn, said, "Sally never says no to an extraordinary request" in her commitment to students. She focuses on helping them make the transition from high school to college while keeping the bar of achievement high. An ASC member, she is also a representative to the Ohio Association for Developmental Education.

- Penny Nemitz, coordinator of Academic Enhancement and Disability Services at BGSU Firelands. Nemitz was praised by her four nominators for a leadership style that brings out the best in everyone. She encourages staff to engage in professional development activities in order to deliver a higher level of service. An ASC member, she has reorganized disability services this year and responded to a student request for a basketball class by "single-handedly reviving a dormant program." Nemitz received her award at Firelands' closing ceremony the same day.

- Nancy VanderLugt, flight systems manager at the airport. Her nominator, colleague Joan Kitchen, said students are VanderLugt's "top priority." She was instrumental in getting a grant to install a new parking area for the airplanes in the aviation studies program, and "even planted flowers around the building to make it more attractive." She volunteers her time both at work and in the community. The treasurer of the Ohio Council on Aviation Education, she is also an aviation safety counselor with the Federal Aviation Administration and a member of the National Intercollegiate Flying Association.

Get into summer with intramural sports

During the summer, the Intramural Office is offering softball and four-player sand volleyball. These programs are open to all University students, faculty, staff and their spouses. Contact the Intramural Office at 2-2464 for details and to request an entry form.

Mary McGowan noted for BG spirit

Mary McGowan, creative writing and women's studies, has won the classified staff Spirit of BG Award. When budget cuts forced the elimination of a secretarial position from the English department, McGowan volunteered to split her time between two part-time positions. McGowan received $75 in appreciation of her dedication.
